

Rebecca Wilbanks

Rebecca Wilbanks is a Ph.D. candidate in the Program in Modern Thought and Literature at Stanford University and holds a BA, summa cum laude, from Cornell University (biology and comparative literature). She is a recipient of the Ric Weiland Fellowship in the Humanities and Sciences (2013-2015), and a Mellon Foundation Dissertation Fellowship (2015-2016). Her research brings together science studies, literary studies, and the history and philosophy of science to investigate trends in the contemporary life sciences and their sociocultural reverberations. As a researcher for the Triple Helix Association, she contributed a review of the literature on the entrepreneurial university that was used to inform the Leiden workshop on entrepreneurial university metrics.